The Mirk And Midnight Hour

The Mirk and Midnight Hour is a very atmospheric and creepy novel. However, in the blurb it's called a retelling of the Tam Lin ballad set in civil war era Mississippi. I would say that it's barely that.

The Mirk and Midnight Hour by Jane Nickerson

Side note: "The Mirk and the Midnight Hour" is an inventive retelling of the legend of Tam Lin. I highly recommend doing a Google search for the original story AFTER you've finished the book as you will definitely be impressed with the imaginative way that Nickerson weaves aspects of the traditional into her novel.

The Mirk and Midnight Hour is in part a Southern Gothic retelling of the Scottish ballad "Tam Lin", in which the headstrong Janet goes to pluck roses at Carterhaugh against her father's wishes and ends up with a fairy lover. Most of the time, though, it's its own story with its own characters, and it's wonderful.

At the mirk and midnight hour
She heard the bridles sing,
She was as glad at that
As any earthly thing.
First she let the black pass by,
And then she let the brown,
But quickly she ran to the milk-white steed,
And pulled the rider down.
So well she minded
what he did say,
And young Tam Lin did win,
Then covered him
with her mantle green,
